My trip began in Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia Herzegovina. Sarajevo is a city with a long and fascinating history. It was founded in the 15th century by the Ottomans, and it has been ruled by many different empires over the centuries. This rich history is reflected in the city's architecture, which is a blend of Ottoman, Austro-Hungarian, and modern styles.

One of the most famous landmarks in Sarajevo is the Latin Bridge. This bridge was the site of the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria in 1914, which sparked the outbreak of World War I. Today, the bridge is a popular tourist destination, and it is a reminder of the city's tragic past.

Another must-see attraction in Sarajevo is the Baščaršija, the old town. The Baščaršija is a maze of narrow streets and alleys, lined with traditional shops and restaurants. It is a great place to experience the traditional Bosnian culture, and to pick up some souvenirs.

After spending a few days in Sarajevo, I decided to venture out and explore the rest of the country. My first stop was Mostar, the fifth-largest city in Bosnia Herzegovina. Mostar is famous for its beautiful Old Bridge, which was built in the 16th century by the Ottomans. The bridge is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and it is one of the most recognizable landmarks in the country.

I also visited Blagaj, a small village located about 10 miles from Mostar. Blagaj is home to a beautiful monastery that is built into a cliff face. The monastery is surrounded by stunning scenery, and it is a great place to relax and take in the views.

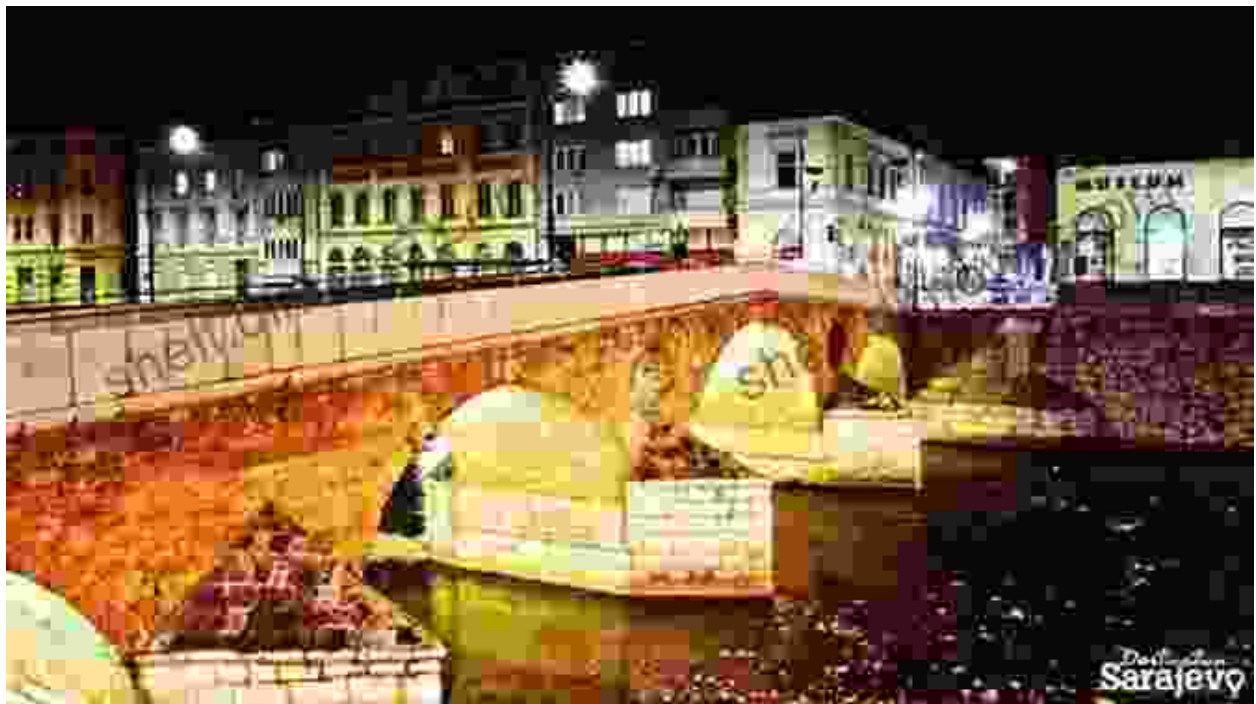

My trip to Bosnia Herzegovina was an unforgettable experience. I was amazed by the country's natural beauty, rich history, and vibrant culture. I would highly recommend visiting this beautiful country to anyone who is interested in traveling to Southeastern Europe.
